For the past twenty-eight years Wongabina has been a cattle breeding enterprise focusing on animal wellbeing and ease of management.

- Well maintained permanent pastures of both temperate and sub-tropical species have been established, and vetch and clovers have been incorporated as companion species, these have been consistently fertilized with poultry litter. Native grasses have been over sown with clovers.
- Stock water is secure. A 1.5-kilometre frontage to the permanent Coxs Creek on the eastern side of the property is complimented by 2 bores and 19 dams. Coxs Creek ran right through the 2018-20 drought.
- A laneway system facilitates stock movements between the 28 paddocks and the cattle yards.
- Steel cattle yards are extensive with a loading ramp, covered vet crush for adult cattle as well as a calf race and 'Spin a Calf' cradle. All cattle work can be a one-man job.
- There is a four bay machinery shed, hayshed, small walk-in silo and a small vehicle storage shed.

Wongabina certainly is an impressive rural property from both a lifestyle and business perspective.
